

Reflections on a Sculpture Project

How do you think access to technology (internet , cell phones) and social media has influenced your sense of self? What aspects of technology and social media influence how you view yourself or others? Are there both positive and negative impacts on your sense of identity?

Our project incorporated " Selfies" as contemporary self portraits ,made using technology, Photoshop and printers, do you think that your online identity paints a complete portrait of yourself? What aspects of yourself are revealed by your online identity and which are not represented or are difficult to reveal through words and images?

Are there any major differences between your online self and your real life self?

How has creating this sculpture changed your ideas about what sculpture is or can be?

Having now seen the work in a complete form, what do are your reactions to it?
